TRIPLE PLAY BY RED SOX AS GRIFFMEN WIN, 5 TO 4

Johnson's Pitching and Hitting Are Main Factors In Victory—Hurler Drives Across Three of Nationals' Tallies.

BY DENMAN THOMPSON.

OSTON, August 12.—What undoubtedly was the smallest gathering that has witnessed a game in the American League this season, or probably for several years, was on hand to "welcome" the Red Sox back to Fenway Park after an absence of nearly three weeks, and it saw the New York cast-offs licked by the Nationals, 5-4.

The 1,138 cash customers who did turn out were hardly disappointed at the defeat meted out to Duffy's clan, for nothing else was expected after the sorry showing the team made in the west, but they were repaid by witnessing that rarity of base ball—a triple play—executed by the local lights and in about as snappy a fashion as could be imagined.

ON THE SIDE LINES

BOSTON, August 12.—The Nationals make their final appearance of the season in Boston today, playing two games with the Sox. Mogridge and Francis against Quinn and Karr is the probable pitching program.

Rice and Harris were on second and first, respectively, in the final frame. CALL IT PUNISHMENT by virtue of singles off Piercy, who had relieved Collins in that round, when Russell succeeded him. Russell pitched one ball only and Milan attempted to sacrifice on it. His bunt was grabbed by Ruel not more than two feet in front of the plate and shot to third for a force-out. Pittinger then whipped the ball over to Burns in time to flag Milan at first. and Harris, who endeavored to reach third, was nipped there when Burns lined the pill across the diamond to Pittinger, who tagged Stanley as he slid in.

Johnson Aids With Bat.

Johnson Aids With Bat.

It was great stuff, but afforded the meager crowd its only chance to entuse aside from an abortive rally staged by the Sox in the eighth, for in every other frame Johnson and his mates successfully resisted Boston's efforts to score, while Walter supplemented his box work by some timely hitting, with Goslin, Brower, Shanks and Peck lending assistance on attack.

and Peck lending assistance on attack.

Set down in order for two innings, the Nationals horned into the run column in the third, when Peck got a life on Fewster's wide throw, moved up on Picinich's sacrifice, and registered on a single to left by Johnson. Four hits produced only one additional marker in the fourth, when Collins was all but literally knocked off the slab. With one gone, Goslin blistered a single to left and raced to third on Brower's terrific liner down the right-field line. Shanks knocked Collins loose from his cap and beat his throw to first, Goslin scoring, and Peck caromed a vicious liner off the pitcher's leg. Then, with the bases loaded, Picinich succumbed to strikes and Johnson roiled to Fewster.

In the same period Johnson was seriously threatened on two occasions, but escaped undamaged. Pratt opened the second with a double down the left field line. On Picinich's throw to catch him napping Pratt was trapped, but Peck fumbled and Del took third, being credited with a stolen base.

Coach Jimmy Burke of the Red Sox was given the gate by Umpire Nallin for disputing his decision at the plate in the second inning.

Pratt robbed Rice of a bingle by dashing far to his left to spear Sam's hot shot with one hand in the third.

Del took third, being credited with a stolen base.

Pratt held third while Peck was tossing out J. Harris, Menoskey drew a pass and Fewster popped. On the fourth bail to Ruel, Pratt and Menoskey essayed a double stezi, but Stan Harris got Picinich's peg back in time to get a close decision at the plate.

Leibold hit into a double play, after Collins walked in the third and the following frame saw another Boston rally nipped through a dual killing made possible by headless base running. Burns and Pratt both singled sharply to left, J. Harris sacrificed and Menoskey again walked, crowding the corners. Fewster then lined to Harris, whose toss in an attempt to double up Pratt off second was muffed by Peck. Shanks recovered the ball and dashed for third, which Pratt had reached, and tagged Burns before he could return, the latter having feiled to notice the fumble until the stolength of the pastime, whereupon Brower was brought in to play first and Milan went to right.

Rip Collins got through after stopping Johnson's wicked crack in the eighth, Shano Collins going in to bat for him.

Rice made a desperate attempt to snare Pratt's productive triple in the eighth, climbing the embankment in left center and then diving for the ball. He missed connections by an inch or two and took a header, but was unhurt. before he could return, the latter hav-ing failed to notice the fumble until too late to try for the plate.

Add Three More Tallies. Add Three More Tallies.

The Nationals added three tallies to their total in the sixth, when Collins was merrily peppered. Goslin started with a shot to center, advanced on Brower's death and scored on Shanks' rap to left. Peck here doubled over the initial sack, sending Hank to third and after Picinich popped foul, Johnson scored the pair of them with a lopoing single to right. After the fourth the Sox could do nothing with Johnson until the eighth. Then they did a lot of things, their savage attack on Barney netting them four runs. John Collins, batting for his namesake, popped to ting them four runs. John Collins, batting for his namesake, popped to Harris, but Leibold singled. Mitchell walked, and after Burns lofted, they tallied on Pratt's triple to left center. Joe Harris then doubled to right, scoring Pratt, and counted himself when Menoskey came through with a single. The rully ended when Kern when Menoskey came through with a single. The rally ended when Karr, batting for Fewster, rolled to Shanks. In the ninth Johnson had no trouble disposing of the Sox in order, including Elmer Miller, ex-Yank, who batted for Russell.

tent to which Boston has soured on the Red Sox and their owner, H. H. Frazee, found expression in one of the local papers, which, on the return of Duffy's team from the west to open a home stand of three weeks, yesterday published these lines in black type:

"Base ball fans may now hunt up their fishing poles, golf clubs or whatever impediments they may need to pursue their second favorite sport, as they will have nothing to distract their attention until August 30, the date the Braves are scheduled to return." In another place under a two-column filustration of several Washington players with the caption, "Frazee Day Victims," appeared the following explanatory matter:

"Men who must attend the game." Players who will contest in Davis cup final with the winner of the Australian-French match, with the ultimate vice ors meeting the United States in the challenge round. They are, left to right: Count de Gomar, Manuel Alonso and Jose Alonso.

RICHARDS AND KINSEY

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., August 12.

—Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., and Robert Kinsey of San Francisco will meet today in the final round of the men's invitation singles for the Southampton cup. Richards won his first leg on the trophy in 1920 and was defeated in the final last year by Willis E. Davis of San Francisco. The national junior champion is anxious to earn his second leg on the cup, but will have to be at the best today to defeat Kinney, who showed yesterday that he is at the top of his game by trouncing Zenzo Shumizu, former Japanese Davis cup star, 8—6, 6—0, 6—2. Richards gained his final bracket after a spectacular duel with the other Japanese crack, Selichiro Kashio, which went four sets, 6—4, 3—6, 6—4, 7—5. Richards and Kinsey also will oppose each other in the doubles final the former paired with Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., national indoor champion, and the latter with his brother, Howard.

The Kinseys, who eliminated Willis Davis and S. Howard Voshell of Brooklyn yesterday in straight sets, were favored to win on the strength of their finished teamwork.

Richards and Hunter took five sets to defeat Hugh Kelleher and Leonard Beekman of New York in the semi-finals.

French Players Must take Both Matches to Enter Final With Spain—Atipodeans Capture Doubles After Stirring Clash.

OSTON, August 12.-Whether it be Australia or France that will oppose Spain for the right to challenge the United States for the Davis cup, trophy of world tennis supremacy, was up for decision today on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club at Chestnut Hill. The team from the Antipodes entered the two singles matches of this, the third day of its tourney with France, one point to the good, as a result of its doubles victory yesterday. Australia got the edge when Patterson and Wood defeated Gobert and Cochet a thrilling doubles match yesterday after five sets, 6-0, 6-8, 4-6, 6-0, 10-8.

At the beginning it looked like a walkover for Patterson and his partier, the first six games being reeled off quickly and the Frenchmen playing poorly. In the first set Gobert showed signs of getting into form, but he was erratic and there seemed little chance for him to bable to puil himself together. However, the unexpected happened, for in the second set the Frenchmen railied after making a sturdy fight for the opening game, and from that point to the finish the teams struggled exactly on even terms in games won and lost.
